WONDERFUL MUMMY

IT IS ON EXHIBITION AT PORTLAND, OREGON, EXPOSITION.

Visitors Say It Resembles John D. Rockefeller and It Attracts Lots of Attention from the Crowds.

Portland, Ore., Sept. 8.—Savants delving in the clay of the John Day district in eastern Oregon a few days ago unearthed the remains of a three-toed horse of prehistoric times, but this discovery has not created half the stir that must be credited to a certain mummy of ancient Egypt which reposes on the wooden platform as a free show in the Streets of Cairo concession on the Trail at the Lewis and Clark exposition. It has been dubbed "the Rockefeller Mummy."

This mummy is the oldest man, by several thousand years, at the exposition. It is also the ghastliest human relic ever exposed to view in the northwest. Ordinarily when a mummy is put on exhibition one may see only the exterior wrappings. Through the thick swathings of mummy cloth the eye may not penetrate, and it is only taken for granted that the remains of a human being are inside. But this particular mummy is startlingly visible to the naked eye. The ancient ceremonies have been unwrapped from his head, chest, arms and feet and from his right leg almost to the thigh.

Egyptian writings on the wrappings and on the surface of the wooden coffin have been partly deciphered by learned men, who aver that this relic is the mummy of a rich nabob of the Nile country, who lived about 2,500 years before the beginning of the Christian era. The mummy, therefore, is about 4,400 years old.

A visitor to the exposition, however, who knows nothing about hieroglyphic writings or the history of money-making along the Nile, stopped in front of the exposed mummy some days ago and looked long and intently at the face and bald skull.

"Who is it?" inquired one of the other sightseers. "Do they know his name?"

"I'm from Cleveland, Ohio," volunteered the intent gazer.

"I wasn't asking about you," said the questioner. "I was asking about the mummy."

"And I was going to tell you about this mummy," replied the man from Cleveland. "I was going to say that I don't know the name of this deceased gentleman here, but if he don't look like John D. Rockefeller from the nose up I'll eat a chunk out of his coffin."

The crowd agreed that the resemblance was somewhat striking, and now the eager throngs gather about the ghastly relic and wonder if Standard Oil ever was poured upon the troubled waters of the Nile in the days of the great Rameses. Irreverent visitors have named this "the Rockefeller Mummy," and some of the jokes made at its expense and at the expense of Mr. Rockefeller are even ghastlier than the mummy itself.

There appears to be something uncannily irresistible about this mummy. People frequently stand and gaze at it for several minutes at a time, and turn away only to go back and have another look. Near by is a row of sales booths, where foreign ladies and gentlemen seek to sell all manner of oriental fancies, and behind one counter stands a buxom matron from Stamboul whose method of attracting attention to her wares is to cry: "Have a look! Have a look! Have a look!" The visiting public has mistaken this to mean "have a look at the mummy," and many persons are attracted to the Egyptian deceased by this means. There are several other mummies, some of them much prettier than the one with the peculiar resemblance, but they are still swathed in their cerements and attract scant attention.

Biff!

Mrs. Blue—Don't you think your daughter uses a great deal of slang?

Mrs. True—Yes; but she says she can't express her thoughts without it.

"Indeed! My daughter doesn't use any slang at all!"

"Of course! But really, don't you think it is better to express one's thoughts badly than never to have any thoughts at all?"—Detroit Free Press.

The Benefits of Travel.

Friend—What's that box on the front of your machine?

Automobilist—That's a camera for taking moving pictures. You see, I go so fast I don't have time to look at the scenery, and so I photograph it as I go along.—L'Illustration.

ECHOES

From the Carnival Served In Small Doses.

The colored population was very much in evidence on the streets Saturday, but not so much so on the carnival grounds.

Reckless Russell, who was injured by his bicycle-dive Tuesday night, performed the feat Friday night.

The voting contest was declared off Thursday, as it was found to be a losing game, the public not voting enough to make it profitable.

"It was the biggest and best yet," seems to be the general opinion.

Russell kisses his wife farewell everytime he starts up the incline to make a dive.

The county fair part of the carnival, though not what it was expected, was "some pumpkins"—there were thirteen of the largest ever grown here.

There were comparatively few drunken men on the streets and none allowed on the grounds.

Now that it's over everyone is experiencing a feeling of relief. By spring they will want another.

The local Fraternal Union is well satisfied with their part of the proceeds, as they are now several hundred dollars better off. The money will go into the general treasury of the order.

Wounds, Bruises and Burns.

By applying an antiseptic dressing to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflammation sets in, they may be healed without maturation and in about one-third the time required by the old treatment. This is the greatest discovery and triumph of modern surgery. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness and prevents any danger of blood poisoning. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering such injuries entail. For sale by L. L. Elgin and Anderson & Fowler, the up to date druggists at Hopkinsville.

Several Kentucky bankers are in Washington this week.

Nothing to Fear.

The question of injurious substance in medicines which has been agitating minds of many people, does not concern those who use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mothers need have no hesitation in continuing to give it to their little ones, as it contains absolutely nothing injurious. This remedy is not only perfectly safe to give small children, but is a medicine of great worth and merit. It has a world wide reputation for its cures of coughs, colds and croup and can always be relied upon. For sale by L. L. Elgin and Anderson & Fowler, the up to date druggists at Hopkinsville.

John Ruhkamp, well known in Louisville, is dead.

Caution!

Persons when traveling should exercise care in the use of drinking water. As a safeguard it is urged that every traveler secure a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy before leaving home, to be carried in the hand luggage. This may prevent distressing sickness and annoying delay. For sale by L. L. Elgin and Anderson & Fowler, the up to date druggists at Hopkinsville.

Sluggishness is only selfishness turned sour.

"It was almost a miracle. Burdock Blood Bitters cured me of a terrible breaking out all over the body. I am very grateful." Miss Julia Filbridge, West Cornwell, Conn.
